THE TESTIMONY IN The Celebrated Coke-Ridgewell Shooting Case Nearing the End.

The Prosecution Submits A Strong Tes- timony In Rebuttal—A Flat Denial of the Truthfulness of Statements Made by the Defense.

The evidence in the Coke-Ridgewell shooting case is all in, after five days consumed in examining and cross-examining witnesses. The last witness left the stand at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon and Judge Martin adjourned the court until to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock. The argument will begin at that hour.

Another tilt between the lawyers occurred after the jury had been adjourned. It was over the question of instructions to the jury by the court. Mr.
 Thon, for the prosecution, submitted an outline of what he thought should be the charge to the jury. It was an over-act by a man in the heat of passion caused by hearsay of a supposed grievance simply not justifiable.

The other side disputed the soundness of this reasoning. Their view was in effect, that the defendant, acting upon a confession and other evidence, was entirely justified. Mr. Morris, who regarded as conclusive, shot and maimed a man before he had time to reflect sufficiently to cool his heated passion. They claimed, therefore, that the benefit of condonement which the law allows in such cases should be his, and that it is a matter for the jury to decide. A number of authorities were cited. The defense also claimed that when the offense of shooting and maiming is admitted or proved, the burden of proving that it was malicious rests upon the Commonwealth.

TESTIMONY.
 When the trial resumed yesterday morning Gussie Vaughn, the colored girl formerly employed at the defendant's house, was put on the stand.
 She told the jury that she was "Miss Gussie" and that she was a servant in the most humorous way yet introduced.
 She described herself as the confidential adviser of Mrs. Coke. The latter rarely wrote or received a letter, but that Gussie perused it. She gave her testimony so rapidly that the stenographer in his efforts to keep pace with her, was obliged to keep a pen in his mouth. She was never nervous, and a loss in repartee with the lawyers for the defense. Gussie posed as the savior of Mrs. Coke's life on one or two occasions. Her heroic brought forth smiles from the jury box and peals of laughter from the audience.

After the testimony of the defendant offered to send her away and pay her board and give her $10 additional if she would not testify in the case. She said Mrs. Coke treated Mrs. Coke cruelly, and once she saw him with a knife holding her by the throat. Upon seeing this, witness said she ran away and walked into the room and defied Mrs. Coke to touch his wife with the knife. (Defendant at this point laughed so loud that a deputy sheriff rapped for order). Witness carried the note from Mrs. Coke asking for a loan of $50 from Mr. Ridgewell to the latter's place of business. Mr. Ridgewell simply said he would attend to it, but the colored girl said she did not want Mrs. Coke to borrow the money, and she told her on her return that Mr. Ridgewell said he was afraid he would "never get rid of admitted this fact, but she denied that she was swearing falsely or that she was describing the defendant as a dangerous person, but protested loudly that she "was no more afraid of him than she was the chillsuns."

DEFENDANT'S DAUGHTER.
 Little May Coke, the fifteen-year-old daughter of the defendant by his first wife, testified that on the morning of the shooting her father carried her upstairs to her room by force and took a letter from her and threatened to kill her, and accused her of improper relations with Mr. Ridgewell, which Mrs. Coke denied. This testimony was a direct contradiction of the defendant's, who said that his wife made the confession to him, and that acting upon it he shot Mr. Ridgewell.

DEFENDANT'S WIFE.
 Mrs. Coke was called to the stand.
 She said she married Mr. Coke in September, 1896, and that he had been unkind to her. She was always showing jealousy, and she thought her husband sane at times. He once brought home some oranges and gave her and the children one each. The one he gave her had a hole in it, and she did not eat it for fear it was poisoned. She laid it on the sidewalk, and she said on cross-examination, and did not prevent anyone else from eating it. She was called once in the night and found her husband standing over her with a red-hot poker. He told her it was well she was awake, for he was about to burn her alive. When cross-examined she said that when this occurred some fourteen months ago. When cross-examined with the letter which Mr. Coke took away from her on the day of the shooting, and which was supposed to have been intended for Mr. Ridgewell, she admitted having written it. The letter was addressed "Dear friend." She said she wrote in this way because she did not want to use Mr. Ridgewell's name as her husband might get hold of it. One sentence read: "I am sorry I have given you so much worry, and I assure you will not be so hard to get rid of as you think." She said this was in reply to the message which the servant-girl told her Mr. Ridgewell had sent about being worried over the request of the loan for $50. She said she did not request the loan of money from her father because she would have had to explain to him that she wanted it to enable her to leave her husband and she knew he would not approve of that.

When asked concerning the testimony of other witnesses as to improper relations with Mr. Ridgewell, Mrs.
 Coke, with a tremor on her lips, denied the allegations. She was very emphatic in her general denial of all such charges, and when asked specifically if she had ever visited Sewell's place, Mr. Ridgewell, as a witness has stated, she said she had not, nor had she been to any place with him.

MR. RIDGEWELL AGAIN.
 Mr. Ridgewell was placed on the stand again after Mrs. Coke had finished her testimony, and repeated that his relations with Mrs. Coke had always been entirely proper, and that he had little more than a speaking acquaintance with her.

Mr. Ridgewell was on the stand when court adjourned for dinner. During the afternoon session he was cross-examined and declared that more falsehoods had been sworn to against him than he had ever heard against any other man.

Mrs. Coffman, of Nansemond county, Mr. Coke's sister, and Mary Gray, colored woman, were the last witnesses.
 Their testimony was not of much importance.

The jury was then adjourned over.

A DESPERATE ASSAULT.
 A NEGRO ATTEMPTS TO CARVE AUCTIONEER MORRIS.

Mr. R. R. Morris was assaulted in his auction house, at the head of Market Place, yesterday morning by Charles Ham, colored, a fish cleaner. The negro, who was armed with a dangerous-looking knife he had in his hand when he entered Mr. Morris' place of business. It seems that Mr. Morris and his clerks, as well as others in that immediate locally, have had much trouble with the negro, and his father, who clean fish just across the street from the auction house.

Yesterday morning the negro became abusive and attacked Mr. Morris as above stated. While Mr. Morris was warding off the knife and striking at Ham, the latter rushed up from behind and panned Mr. Morris' head with a close to his body. The assailant with the knife then ran off. A warrant was sworn out for him later by Mr. Morris and an officer detailed to serve it.

SEEKING A LOCATION.
 PENN. GLASS MANUFACTURERS INVESTIGATING NORFOLK'S ADVANTAGES.

A well-known firm of Pittsburg (Pa.) manufacturers is investigating the advantages of Norfolk as a location for a glass plant. This house manufactures bottles, table-ware and other articles of glass.

The firm contemplates opening a plant here if, on investigation, its members are satisfied that it is a good point from which to ship products North and East, and if labor supply, cost of site, &c., are found satisfactory.

 The ladies' first prize was won by Miss Alice Williams. The gentlemen's first prize was won by James Farant.
 Refreshments were served afterwards.

In Memoriam.
 Friday the members of No. 2 engine house force of firemen hung on the walls of their house sitting room a fine portrait of their comrade, the late deceased Thomas A. Barre, whose heroic life's extinction was one of the sad results of the St. Vincent's Hospital fire.
 The portrait is in pastel, 20x24 inches, and is one of Campbell's finest efforts.
 It was paid for by the subscription of his comrades, and is mounted in an eight-inch gilt frame, and reflects credit on artist and men.

 er in the New York Sun), who devoted to the edition a whole column, and in analysis of this author's works, which shows that he has evidently carefully noticed each novel in detail; and in so doing, practically presented a complete bibliographic synopsis of Balzac.

Our readers will be particularly interested in Mr. Hazlewood's comparison of the several translations now published, in which he emphatically shows the superiority of the Barrie edition over that of all others. 02-31
